After sponsoring two Streetfilms of the first two CicLAvias, Los Angeles' version of the open streets festival based on Bogota's Ciclovía, Los Angeles Streetsblog faced a dilemma: How can we continue to cover the event that draws over a hundred thousand Angelenos to the streets? The Answer: Make a Streetfilm that was accessible to Southern California's large Spanish-speaking population.

iViva CicLAvia! consists of two parts. First, narrator Mara Corina Arellano Colin

The House That EDC Built: A 9,000-Car Complex With 8,930 Empty Spaces

by Brad Aaron

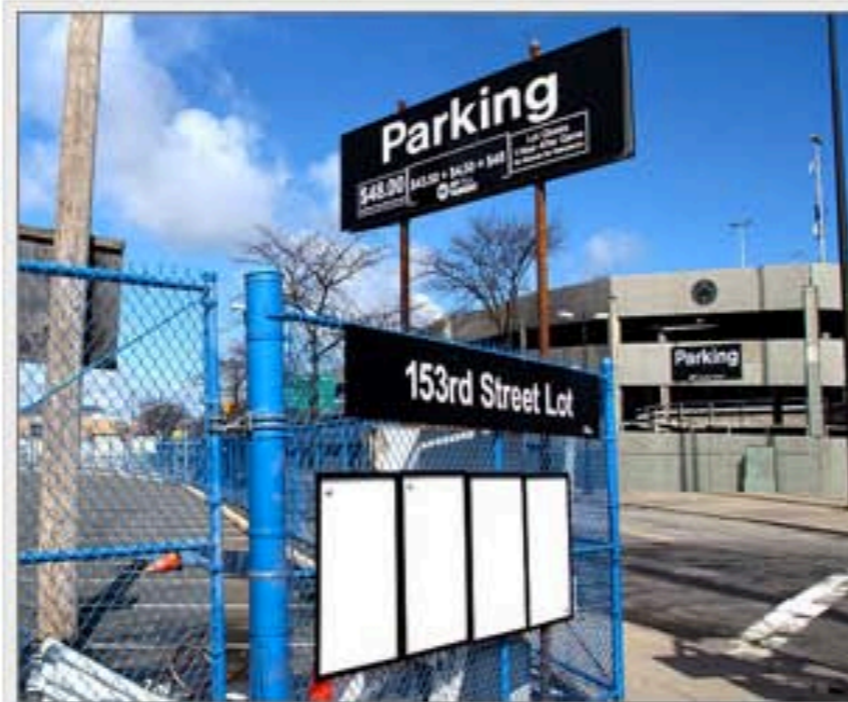

In case you're just tuning in, all that taxpayer-subsidized parking built for the new Yankee Stadium has failed beyond anyone's wildest expectations.

In today's Daily News, Juan Gonzalez reports that Bronx Parking Development Company LLC is expected to default this year on the $200+ million in triple-tax-exempt bonds issued by the New York City Industrial Development Agency, the financing arm of the New York City Economic Development Corporation. Since the threat of default has loomed for some time now, let's look at the more recent developments cited by Gonzalez.

The promise of jobs to be created by the garages was never that grand to begin with — 12 full-time and 70 part-time positions, with an average wage of $11 an hour. But Bronx Parking LLC is so desperate for cash, writes Gonzalez, that "the company plans to slash the salaries of a handful of full-time garage employees and to reduce the number of game-day parking attendants from 76 to 57."

"The people who continue to pay the price for this thing are the kids who lost their park space, and now the handful of people who got jobs and are going to lose them," says Bettina Damiani, project director of Good Jobs New York, an NGO that has tracked the stadium project from its inception.

On top of that, a proposal to lure a hotel to complement or replace the garages has apparently cratered after

SUGGEST STATION

Phoebe suggested this station in Park Slope.

This is a major entrance to Prospect Park for Park Slope residents and users of the PPW bike lane. A bike station here makes a lot of sense!
